

Lafayette native, Jebbye Domengeaux Moroux, is an artist of many disciplines. Her art is vibrant and dancing with color. As an ardent supporter of artists in her own community and as a collector of work, which she instinctively recognizes as worthy, she inspires untold number of art-lovers and art-doers. A major part of her work is the widely collected “Tony Angels” she paints daily. She says they are a direct line to her “Tony,” who continues to inspire and protect her.

Most of her works are the small, irrepressible paintings she lovingly calls "d'Arts." They are whimsical, capricious and sometimes-spiritual peeks of "life-in-the-little" One can only look again...peer deeper into these small but glorious slices of our world unveiled through her artist-eye and imagination.
